I was able to apply the theoretical knowledge which I learnt while pursuing masters to solve practical real-world business problems. Working with Java, Spring and Angular gave me lot of experience with designing, testing and debugging problems. While building new functionalities, I acquired new skills and competences to define strategies and to solve technical issues.

My contributions to the team received great feedback from the management and senior developers.

The goals, objectives, and assessment measures for the rest of the STEM OPT period would remain the same.
